

MALTA

ERASMUS+

I can do something more!

Education is a term strictly related to the progress of the young people educated in the framework of educational law – in the kindergartens, primary schools, secondary schools and universities.

Unfortunately.

The idea of education understood more widely, just as the Erasmus+ programme proposes, is invigorating for me. The idea of education understood as an on-going process rather than a stage in life that ends with obtaining appropriate grades, certificates and diplomas.

Development.

Thankfully the Erasmus+ programme provides opportunities for such development. Development of our knowledge and competences. What is most important – anyone can utilize it – it is designed for all the adults who are ready to tell themselves "I can do something more".

Using the Erasmus+ programme I told myself that "I can do something more" with my English language skills. Last time I have had used it was over 12 years ago, when I certified myself with a positive exam result at a B2 level with a very good grade.

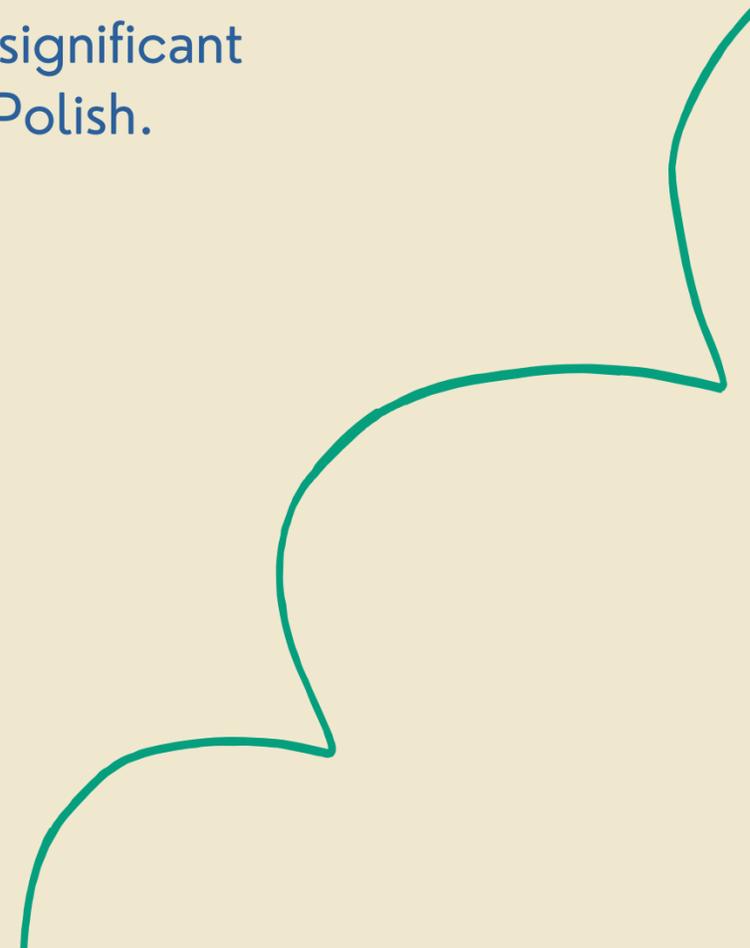

I wanted to be able to debate about the values that are important for me in my work and about significant events that I am responsible for in a group of people that is not limited to recipients who speak Polish.

Most importantly– I wanted to do it properly.

Malta C1
Language Course
English

Hence the idea of proving myself in advanced English language training at least at C1 level, which I have decided to participate in Malta. From what I have heard Malta is famous for the excellent preparation of teachers in their language schools.

Malta is a beautiful island, a culturally and historically opulent country and society. Not to mention the people of Malta – they are extremely hospitable to any stranger on the one hand, but also they are exceptionally hardworking – especially taking into the account the climate they have to face in their everyday, island life. Encountering such a conditions fostered me to really demand more of myself.

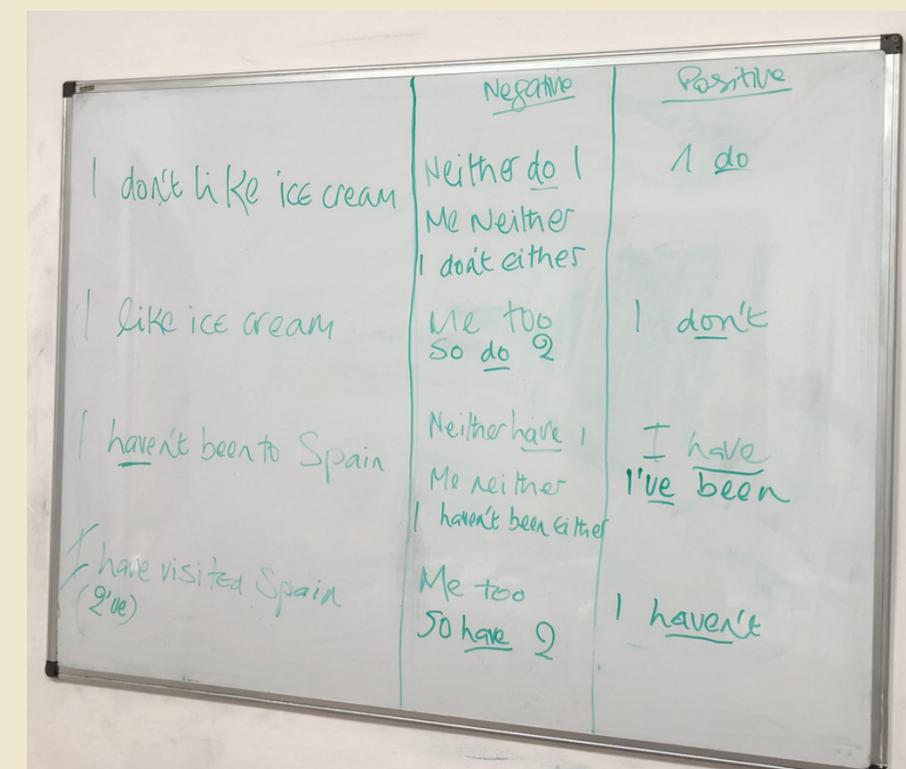

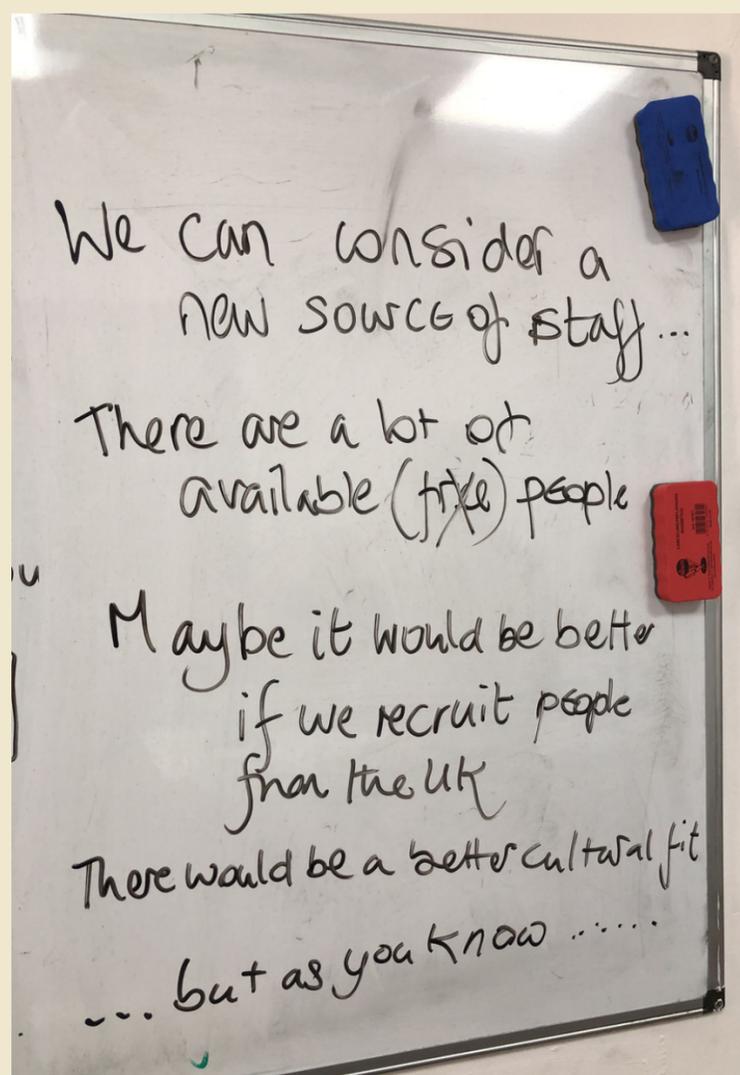

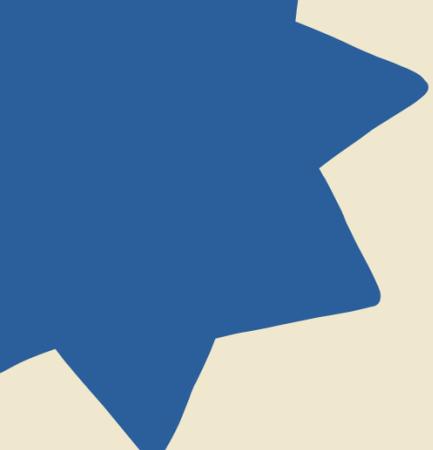

Did I succeed?

Honestly I can say that, in my opinion, I succeeded with the challenge of that language course.

However, I was not only the only person that was demanding to myself – all of this would not be possible with the challenge brought to me by colleagues of mine I had met during the language course, as well as the teachers who had set their bar exceptionally high.

Under their watchful eye I quickly opened myself for the communication using the English language and improved my skills in this area. I had build my confidence and expanded my vocabulary.

Today I want to share some of this experiences with my colleagues in my organization.

That is why I had addressed an open invitation for any person who is related to the Korfanty's Institute to the open English-spoken seminars during English Mondays.

Anyone who can relate to a "I can do something more" attitude is welcome at these seminars to strengthen their English language skills, to boost their confidence and to enrich their vocabulary.

I believe that together we will manage to prove ourselves that jointly – we can do something more!
